

DOMAINE DIDIER DAGUENEAU

BUISSON RENARD

A single parcel located mid-slope on the southwest side of Saint Andelain, the highest village in the Pouilly-Fume appellation, and the only one to possess soil containing the perfect balance of clay and flint (silex). Historically, this vineyard has been known as Buisson Menard, but a few years back, a famous French wine journalist made the unenviable mistake of misnaming it Buisson Renard. Didier took offense and thus renamed it the following year.

Brand:	Domaine Didier Dagueneau
Region:	Loire
Country:	France
Vintage:	2019
Appellation:	Pouilly Fume
Varietal:	Sauvignon Blanc
Class:	White
Alcohol:	13.0%
Size:	750ml
Soil:	Silex (clay and flint)
Viticulture:	Farmed biodynamically
Aging:	Barrel fermented. Aged mostly in 450 and 600 liter barrels

TASTING NOTES: "The Buisson Renard tends to be a more supple, more aromatically restrained cuvée in the Dagueneau stable, and the 2019 is no different. It's probably the richer clay soils on this section of the domaine. There's a delicate savory, herbal and oak-derived nutty character. It is fine and fresh with a supple texture that holds the mouth like a gentle embrace."

- 92pts, Vinous

